

Newborn Sessions Update

Andrea Dedik Photography

Dear Families

I hope you are hugging your loved ones a little tighter at home and keeping yourselves safe and healthy.

In the light of coronavirus outbreak, it is important more than ever to take every precaution to keep us all safe. I wanted to reach out to you on how I plan on handling portrait sessions for the foreseeable future.

As a newborn, maternity and family photographer SAFETY IS OUR PRIORITY at ALL times, not just during this pandemic.

For the safety reasons, I am conducting TWO newborn photo sessions per week in my home studio.

I implement a thorough clean between each client in my studio to keep on top of hygiene. Because of a limited number of sessions, I am able to comfortably meet the Health and Safety criteria.

The level of risk of contracting any viruses is extremely low as a sole operator working from home

To reassure you that I am committed to do anything necessary to protect your family, I am asking of you to please accept the changes that are now in place for all of the session bookings, until further notice. I am committed to do my very best to safely continue to capture all those special moments in your life for as long as I can and I appreciate your support in this challenging time.

Here is a reminder of safety measures as well and the new procedures in place:

- please remove your shoes at the front door
- you will be asked to wash your hands upon arrival and sanitise your hands regularly, especially after touching your face
- don't bring anyone along for moral support - sessions are for an immediate family only (i.e. parents and children)
- before your session - temperature check yourself and family members prior to attending to ensure no one has a fever
- please notify me as soon as there is a suspicion that you or your baby might feel unwell. If your baby or you present as unwell on the day of the shoot, your photo session will be rescheduled
- bring your own water/coffee/snack
- I will not take any chances and in event when I feel under the weather, your session will be moved until it is safe for me to get back to work

If you have any concerns, please reach out directly to me. You can email or call me and we can work through this together.

Be safe. Be well. I am looking forward to seeing you soon!
